

Kimberly Barry, MS, RN, FACHE is a nurse with an extensive case management and nursing operations background. She graduated with a BSN in Nursing from the University of New Hampshire and a MS in Nursing Administration from Northeastern University. She is currently enrolled in a doctorate program at Massachusetts College of Pharmacy and Health Sciences. Throughout her career she has worked in hospitals, with an insurance company an also with a consulting company. Her passion is acute care delivery and interventions along the patient continuum focusing on chronic care management and readmission reduction. Her goals include addressing social determinants of health that have an adverse effect on patient and caregiver wellness.